When the Water Needs to Stop Running

One basic prerequisite for most plumbing projects is shutting off the water. Failing to do so can lead to a mess and water spraying all over the place. Every adult family member should know how to shut off the water at both the fixtures and to the entire house.

Many newly constructed homes have an individual stop valve for each faucet, toilet, and fixture. This prevents you from having to turn off the water to the whole home to repair one fixture. It will also stop the flow quickly in case of emergency.

Every home has at least one main shutoff, which controls water flowing to the entire house. Often there is one main shutoff inside the house and another outside. The outside shutoff is generally underground for the utility company.

Maintaining your shutoff valves is fundamental to ensuring they work properly when you need them to. Main water shutoff valves can become clogged causing slow leaks. Take a look at the valves in your home. If they are in less than stellar shape give us a call and a skilled Stong technician will replace them in little to no time.

Preventing Burst Pipes

The winter season is upon us once again . Along with holiday gatherings and endless shopping comes freezing temperatures and the damages they can cause to your home.

When the coldest weather hits you'll need to do whatever you can to prevent your pipes from freezing. A burst pipe will cause serious damage to your home and is an inconvenience nobody wants to encounter. While your homeowners insurance may cover some of the damage, its much easier to prevent the problem in the first place.

The most effective way to prevent frozen pipes is to insulate them properly. If you are unsure how to insulate your pipes, please call us at Stong Plumbing and our trained and courteous technicians will be happy to help you.

When the temperature dip very low, another way to prevent a burst pipe is to keep the water in your pipes moving . Allow a small trickle of water from each of the faucets to continuously run. Moving water is less likely to freeze and cause damage to your home.

If you do find yourself in the unfortunate position where a pipe in your home burst, make sure to call us right away. We are open 24-7 and are always here for you!
